

John has been dealing with a lot of job-related stress recently because of the large number of messages he has to deal with everyday, across multiple platforms. He's even had to start spending his free time fielding e-mails and catching up on messages.

While they're out to lunch, one of John's colleagues suggests an app that helps you organize all of your messages into one place.

John decides that he'll give it a try and makes a mental note to download it once he gets home.

After going through a simple setup process, he can't wait to give it a try on the job the next day.

At work the next day, John is able to easily manage all of his important messages and is able to devote the time he saves to making himself and his team more productive.

John even finds himself with more free time to relax after work now that he is able to take care of all of his important messages during the day.

John has been dealing with a lot of job-related stress recently because of the large number of messages he has to deal with everyday, across multiple platforms. He's even had to start spending his free time fielding e-mails and catching up on messages.

While they're out to lunch, one of John's colleagues suggests an app that helps you organize all of your messages into one place.

John decides that he'll give it a try and makes a mental note to download it once he gets home.

After going through a simple setup process, he can't wait to give it a try on the job the next day.

At work the next day, John is able to easily manage all of his important messages and is able to devote the time he saves to making himself and his team more productive.

John even finds himself with more free time to relax after work now that he is able to take care of all of his important messages during the day.

David is a single dad of a set of twins and is having a hard time working his job and the daycare that his children are at. His mom helps him out occasionally but he still finds it difficult to keep up with projects at his job while having to pick up the kids from daycare.

While David is at work, on his lunch break, he asks a coworker how they manage work and their children. The coworker is in a similar situation as David but still is able to get their work done.

His coworker explains to him that this app can keep everything he has to do on one platform and notifies him of everything.

After discovering the app David is less stressed and his mom no longer fusses at him about her having to get the kids from daycare all the time. He also does his projects on time.

David is a single dad of a set of twins and is having a hard time working his job and the daycare that his children are at. His mom helps him out occasionally but he still finds it difficult to keep up with projects at his job while having to pick up the kids from daycare.

While David is at work, on his lunch break, he asks a coworker how they manage work and their children. The coworker is in a similar situation as David but still is able to get their work done.

His coworker explains to him that this app can keep everything he has to do on one platform and notifies him of everything.

After discovering the app David is less stressed and his mom no longer fusses at him about her having to get the kids from daycare all the time. He also does his projects on time.

Chloe has been extremely busy the past few days and has let her notifications get out of hand and is trying to organize them all neatly and with certain prioritization.

Chloe finds an app in the app store called Organizing Digital Communication and downloads it.

Chloe begins to organize her messages.

Chloe now has all of her messages organized how she wants them.

Chloe can now get all of her work done efficiently.

Chloe can also now spend more time with her family now that she can keep everything more organized.

Mike's boss (left) is angry at Mike for missing a deadline.
Mike confused his college project deadline with his work deadline!

Mike comes back home frustrated and talks to his roommate about the earlier situation. The roommate mentions an app that can help keep track of multiple things over numerous platforms.

He explains how the app can help keep track of messages and helps decide what you need to start working on.

Mike is relieved and starts playing around with the options and adds his college and job notifications as well as his tasks. He is excited to have a new way to navigate the numerous things in his life.

Mike's boss (left) is angry at Mike for missing a deadline. Mike confused his college project deadline with his work deadline!

HowtoDrawforKids.com

Mike comes back home frustrated and talks to his roommate about the earlier situation. The roommate mentions an app that can help keep track of multiple things over numerous platforms.

HowtoDrawforKids.com

He explains how the app can help keep track of messages and helps decide what you need to start working on.

Mike is relieved and starts playing around with the options and adds his college and job notifications as well as his tasks. He is excited to have a new way to navigate the numerous things in his life.